 This important and valuable Manuscript was found in the collection of Sir Thomas Crewe, who was King's Serjeant in the time of James the First. From the colophon at the end, the date appears to be 1331. At the present period, when the privileges of the Houses of Parliament are constantly under discussion, it is presumed that this MS. might be considered of much consequence in settling the point in dispute, as it most probably contains more than the printed copies, the first edition of which was published in 1569.

For the facility of reading this MS. Mr. Belfour has added at the commencement Jarman's System of Court Hands, in 4to.
